

Things You Need to Know About This Event and How to Register

- While this program was designed with the educational needs of homeschoolers in mind, any family with school age children are invited to attend.
- This event is for students ages 6 – 18 only. Each workshop has a listed age range; only students in that age range may participate – no exception. We apologize, but we are unable to accommodate children under 6 during this program. Please see our website for information on our preschool program offerings.
- One parent must be on the farm for the duration of the event.
- To enhance the experience, participants are encouraged to come in period dress, but it is not mandatory.
- Lunches are available to order from Subway, or you may bring your own. Lunches must be ordered by April 1st. No refunds will be given or changes allowed after that date.
- Registration will begin at 9 a.m. on February 1. Registrations will be taken by phone or in person, and you may see on-line how many spaces are still available for all workshops. Quiet Valley's phone numbers are 570-992-6161, 570-992-9587 or 570-402-0562. The prices for the workshops will be listed on the website, and some workshops will have an extra materials fee. Only students need to pay for the workshops; parents may observe at no cost.
- Tours of the historic farm will be offered on Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:00 p. m. The price for the tour is $8.00 for adults, $5.00 for students. The tour is available for all ages. There will be a scavenger hunt on Friday morning, from 9:15 – 10:30 for the entire family. The price for this is $5.00 for students, free for parents.
- Registration is complete only when payment is received. Payment by credit card or check is recommended. No refunds will be given after March 20.
- There are a limited number of spots available each day, so make your reservation early.
- While Quiet Valley is not a typical museum, our buildings are very old and we do have antique furniture and tools in all of the buildings. Please follow all instructions given to you by the staff as to which items may be used or touched and do not enter any building without a staff person being present. Flash photography and videotaping of the tours is not permitted.
